on 18 August 1971 to discuss the Behavioral Activities priority requirement stated in the TSD memorandum of 15 June 1971. The requirement focuses on the feasibility of using voice analysis technology as an indirect assessment tool.

2. TSD was particularly interested in measures that could be achieved through automation that might be correlated with [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In this regard the BAB research strategy very closely parallels that used in [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] felt that the foreign literature may prove to be a worthwhile source of information because European clinical psychiatry and psychology traditionally has placed more credence on these types of measures than is found in the United States.

3. It was agreed that:

A. Both An/ORD and MBSD/ORD would examine the literature, foreign and U. S., to assess how much progress has been made in the use of voice as an indirect personality index. Some OSI support may be needed. This step should help in sizing the problem and better judging what realistic expectations can be held.

B. MBSD [REDACTED] would continue providing taped interviews to BAB along with [REDACTED] (are derived). These data can be used for studies to be conducted by An/ORD. The [REDACTED] will be reviewed by BAB and MBSD in a few weeks and the results of that meeting will be documented separately.
